AMERICAN DISPATCHES.

ALABAMA POLITICS TO BE RUN BY FARMERS.

The United States Will Want Redress for the Killing of Barrundai in Guatemala—Southern Pacific Railroad Strike Settled—Dunsmuir in San Francisco.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—The Herald's special from the City of Mexico says a message was received here to-day from Acapulco, Mexico, stating that the Pacific Mail Steamship, San Delas, had arrived in that port, having on board one Cunningham, an American or Englishman, who was on his way to the United States for the purpose of influencing the press in favor of Guatemala.

Concerning the Barrundai killing, the telegram winds up by saying: Advise Geronimo Pou to be on his guard. I have reason to believe that Cunningham has sent him a dispatch for some sinister purpose, and is an emissary of Barillas. Pou was seen at his rooms to night. He produced the dispatch from Acapulco, addressed Geronimo Pou, Minister of Salvador: "I warn you for the good of Salvador not to interfere in the Barrundai killing. If you think this important telegraph me at San Francisco. Would not allow you to interfere signed Cunningham. Pou said: 'Have never expressed my opinion in regard to the Barrundai affair, as it is not my sphere to take up the fight of the United States, on whose hands the killing of Barrundai now rests. The officiousness of Cunningham, whom I have never met, is unparalelled. I consider him and his advice perfectly harmless."

An American passenger, who was ashore at San Jose, Guatemala, says he had several conversations while in San Jose with prominent Guatemalians, from the city of Guatemala, and they all expressed a fear that the United States would demand redress for the killing of Barrundai.

Union is Strength.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—The World's Montgomery, Ala., Farmers' Alliance will have a majority of six or seven on the joint ballot in the next legislature, which elects a United States Senator. This gives rise to grave complications. The organization is making a desperate effort to combine on some man, and thus whip the straight outs. There have been so many dissensions in the order of late, however, that it is doubtful if this can be done. The alliance is dreadfully cut up over four straight defeats in congressional fights, having lost at every turn thus far.

Horrible Mine Disaster.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—An Herald's Morristown, N. J. dispatch states that an accident occurred last night in shaft 5 of the Glendon mines at Hibernia, where two miners were killed. George Stormis and Robt. Degraw had charged seven blasts, three of which they lighted. They had retired to a place of safety and when the explosion took place they started forward to adjust the fuse in the remaining four holes, when another explosion occurred, hurling pieces of rock in every direction, mangling both men horribly, and killing them instantly. Degraw's head and breast were completely torn away, while Storm's head was torn off.

Railroad Wages.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5.—A definite programme for the settlement of the wage question on the Southern Pacific system has been arranged. The grievance committee of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen disbanded yesterday, and the members returned to their respective divisions. Grand Master Williamson started for Los Angeles, and during the next few days will visit the various parts of the system. Negotiations in the meantime will proceed between division superintendents and representatives of all the Brotherhoods interested. On the 12th inst. the division superintendents will meet again here and submit the schedules of wages which they have arranged with the men on their divisions. The heads of the operating department will consider the schedule for two or three days, and on the 15th inst. will meet in conference.

At 'Frisco for Miners.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5.—Among the passengers on the steamer Walla Walla which arrived this morning from Victoria, was Alex Dunsmuir. It is said that Dunsmuir's visit to this city means an end to the strike at Wellington in the near future and that he will make arrangements for stocking his mine with men.

State Socialism in Australia.

ADELAIDE, Sept. 5.—The premier has informed the assembly of the government's intention to construct a railroad across the continent to Queensland within three years, with the surplus revenue, and to provide for free education through duties and income tax.

Millions Marry.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—The city hall was brightened yesterday by the most notable marriage party that has ever visited the building since Mayor Hewitt performed the ceremony which united Mrs. Hammersley to the Duke of Marlborough. The bridal couple were Eduardo Alvarese Circe, owner of a rich sugar plantation in Cuba, and Miss Maria de Les Angeles Yznaga, daughter of a millionaire planter of Sancto Spiritus, Cuba. The bride is a cousin of the Duchess of Manchester and also of Fernando Yznaga, who married Mrs. Vanderbilt's sister. The Yznaga family is one of the wealthiest in Cuba, and her father has given the bride a dowry of $100,000. The bridegroom's father is also a millionaire sugar planter, and his son has a comfortable income. The newly married couple sail for Cuba Saturday.

Served at the Altar.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—A special to the Sun from Buffalo says that Edw. Burkhardt, a leading real estate agent, and Miss Laura Smith were married in St. Louis, in the Roman Catholic church to-day. Just before the bridegroom reached the altar a lawyer's clerk thrust into his hands a summons and complaint in an action brought by J. O. McLaughlin, a former partner, for $10,000 damages. Burkhardt bravely put the paper in his coat pocket and went through the ceremony. Burkhardt says to-night the case is one of blackmail.

"Death to Yakeism."

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—A Herald special from the city of Guatemala says: "Death to Yankeism" was the cry of an angry mob that surrounded the United States legation to-day. Threats of stoning the building and mobbing the inmates were freely uttered, but no overt act was committed in the face of a strong force of police that guards the premises day and night. Every visitor is closely questioned before being admitted to the offices and is more or less under watch while inside and till he emerges. Whenever Mizner has occasion to leave the legation he is surrounded by a body of armed police.

Rumors have it that there is to be support from the blue-jackets from the Thetis, who are also to form a cordon of safety about the legation. Sympathy grows for Gen. Barrundas' daughter, who is kept a close prisoner for her attempt on Mizner's life.

A LIVELY COURTSHIP.

A Pleasant Neighborhood in Which Cupid is Assisted by Firearms.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—A Herald's Parkersburg, W. Va., special says: Peter Kinders' wooing of Jenny Barker is just now the sensation of hour in Boone county. Peter called on Jenny on Thursday in the absence of her father, but Mrs. Barker refused him admittance. He entered all the same. Mrs. Barker being overawed by his revolver. Peter and Jenny were anticipating a pleasant evening in the parlor when Barker entered with his shot gun. Several harmless shots were exchanged when J. W. Meadows, another admirer of Jenny, chipped in with his revolver. Kinder was wounded and fled but was afterward arrested. When Kinder was placed on trial his brother drew his revolver twice on Meadows. That secured his arrest also. The whole matter is creating excitement and guns are loaded in homes of interested parties.

CHINESE STRIKE.

They Decline a Reduction of Twelve and a Half Cents a Day at Union Mines.

The Chinamen employed on and about Union Colliery Co.'s railway at Comox, says the Free Press, were notified early this week that their wages would be reduced "one bit" per day. This caused a commotion among the Mongolians and there was "heapee much talkee," which resulted in the Chinamen refusing to take the reduction, and as a consequence went out on strike on Wednesday. Our informant was not aware what the result was, but is of the opinion that the "strike" is still on among the Celestials.

Mr. Maurice McArdle arrived in the city to-day from the Union Mines, where he had been working till within the last five weeks. He states he was discharged from the mines because he held a prominent position in the Union organization of that district, and the Dunsmuirs are doing their utmost to break this organization up.

He got on board the train at Union this morning, with the intention of proceeding to Union Point, when he was called off the train and told he couldn't ride. He boarded the train again for the purpose of finding out what was wrong, when Mr. Frank Little pushed him with his finger and said:

"We don't want men who are not working to ride on the train."

Mr. McArdle had no alternative but to comply with the demand, and was therefore compelled to walk to Union Point in order to take the steamer for Nanaimo.

PLENTY OF WATER.

The 16-Inch Main Supplies the City With Plenty of Water.

According to notice, the 12-inch main was shut off this morning at 9 o'clock. The fact that it was closed could hardly be noticed in that part of the city contiguous to the 16-inch main, which was supplying all the water. Down Douglas street way the pressure was slightly less, as the water to get to that district has to pass through small pipes, and the frictional resistance lessened the pressure somewhat. At the city hall the pressure was almost identical with that registered when 12-inch main alone was doing the work of supplying the city, but the reason that it was not higher was no doubt caused by friction, as the water had to travel half-a-mile in small pipes before it got to the hall.

One noticeable feature of the test was the sudden rise of pressure from the minimum upwards in the middle of the day. With the 12-inch main only, it took four hours to raise the pressure ten pounds, while with the 16-inch main only on, but one hour sufficed to make the same increase. Residents on the high levels, who at the 12-inch main test had no water, did not notice any great diminution in the supply to-day, and it all goes to prove pretty conclusively that the 16-inch main is a big factor in the water supply.

In the early morning hours the pressure was slack on account of the gland and valve spindle of the valve of the 12-inch main at Swan Lake having blown out. In consequence of this the water backed up in the 12-inch main was escaping freely through a 3-inch hole. When this was stopped the pressure increased at once. In one or two places in the very highest points on Fort street water could not be obtained by gravity until late in the afternoon. On Pandora Hill and the upper end of Fernwood Road, a fair supply was had.

HOME AND FOREIGN.

A FRASER RIVER RAFT TOTALLY WRECKED.

The Rafts Men and the Government Officers Have Been Busy—Wealthy Chinamen State that China Will Shortly Exclude Americans From China.

YALE, B. C., Sept. 6.—The Fraser river gold gravel syndicate raft was a total wreck at 5 o'clock last night. The boiler has sunk and the raft has gone down stream. No lives were lost. Loss about $15,000.

China Will Retaliate.

MONTREAL, Sept. 6—Thirteen wealthy Chinamen from New York passed through in bond on their way to Yokohamma, via Vancouver. One of them states that China would soon retaliate on Canada and America by preventing them entering except on certain conditions. They feel very angry at being conveyed in bond like freight.

Big Sticks.

MONTREAL, Sept. 6.—Three large logs or sticks as the art called in British Columbia, arrived here by the Canadian Pacific to-day. The logs, which are the finest specimens of timber ever shipped from the Pacific coast to Montreal, measures three feet square, and are 60 feet long. They are Douglas fir and together weigh about 20,000 pounds. The sticks have been purchased by the Montreal harbor commissioners for dredging purposes.

Opera Makers in Trouble.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—An action was begun by Gilbert against his former manager, d'Oyley Carte, and Sir Arthur Sullivan, to obtain the appointment of a receiver to determine his share of the receipts during the run of "The Godolier." Affidavits read show that Gilbert and Sullivan had received $475,000 from Carte in royalties during the past eleven years. The case was concluded after considerable testimony, by Carte agreeing to pay Gilbert the sum of $10,000 and present within three weeks to the complainant a full statement of the account. Gilbert won upon all points.

Our Trades Assembly Protests.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 4.—At yesterday's session of the Dominion Labor Congress a letter from the Victoria, B.C., Trades Assembly calling the attention of the congress to the increase in Chinese immigration during the last year was read. It protested particularly against this immigration, because of the immorality and congestion of the labor market that resulted. It stated that the opium habit was becoming so common in the West among young white men that it was no longer a cause of horror or even wonder. The letter goes on to say: Surely the Dominion Government is not so dead to the future of Canada as to allow these things to continue. Legislation as exclusive as that of the Australian colonies would have the desired effect.

Foul Play.

STRATFORD, Ont., Sept. 6.—John R. Potter, whose body was found lying in the middle of Romeo street on Tuesday morning, now believed to have been murdered, a post mortem examination having revealed the fact that death was caused by pressure on his windpipe. Several persons are suspected.

A Minister Resigns.

MONTREAL, Sept. 6.—Rev. J. Newham, of the Church of England in Canada, has resigned his charge in this city, and is going out as missionary to Creese, on the shores of Hudson's Bay.

Delegates en Route.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 6.—Sir Henry Tyler, President of the Grand Trunk, and Joseph Hickson, General Manager, arrived here to-day. The delegates from the British Columbia Annual Conference to the General Conference of the Methodist Church, passed through the city this evening on their way to Montreal.

Wishes to Impeach Royal.

TORONTO, Sept. 6.—At a Dominion Alliance meeting yesterday ex-Mayor Howland moved a resolution expressing the apprehension and alarm of people of Toronto at the increase in the consumption of strong drink in the Northwest, which it is alleged was attributed to the permit system, which power had been so exercised by the present Lieut.-Governor as to practically introduce the license system. Rev. Dr. Potts spoke vigorously and moved a resolution sympathizing with friends of the temperance cause in the Northwest in their efforts to remove the evil. Rev. Leroy Hooker suggested that Gov. Royal should be impeached.

DOMINION NEWS.

Sir John Resumes Business—Sydney Webster's Suggestion Absurd.

OTTAWA, Sept. 6.—Sir John Macdonald returned to the city to-day at noon, along with Lady Macdonald and Miss Macdonald. All the ministers in the city were at the steamer to meet him. The Premier looks very much better of his long vacation on the St. Lawrence. A cabinet meeting was held in the afternoon.

The Trades and Labor Council adjourned at two o'clock this morning to meet again in Quebec twelve months hence.

Thinks it Absurd.

TORONTO, Sept. 5.—A Washington special to the Mail says that the suggestion of Sidney Webster that to settle the Behring Sea difficulty Canadian vessels should be seized and the legality of the seizure tested in the United States supreme court, is regarded by the Washington Post as absurd. It urges that as England and the United States agreed upon points of difference the case should be submitted to arbitration.

Has His Reward.

TORONTO, Sept. 5.—R. R. Lion, ex-M.P.P., East Algoma, was yesterday appointed registrar of East Algoma.

An immense assortment of Kensington Art Squares, all sizes, just received by John Weller, 51 to 55 Fort street. *

CARELESS NIMRODS.

Lieut. Hewitt, of H.M.S. Champion, Shot in the Hip.

Among the large number of hunters who went out to Shawnigan lake this morning was Lieut. Hewitt, of H.M.S. Champion, who, it appears, got off the train and walked about half a mile up the track when he took to the woods. The lieutenant was hunting around for game when he was startled by a sudden shot not 25 yards away from him, and was dismayed to find that he had been the mark of the Nimrod. The shot struck him in the hip and badly lacerated the flesh. The injured man managed to reach the station in time to catch the train which conveyed him to the Naval hospital, which is on the line of the E. and N. Railway. The conductor and Mr Jos. Hunter, who was on board, did everything to make the lieutenant comfortable until he was handed over to the hospital doctor. The man, although not fatally, is badly injured. It is presumed that the careless hunter saw a bird jump up in front of him and did not wait to look but banged away with the above result. Although perhaps not altogether his fault, still a little carefulness when shooting will not hurt anybody.

Mrs. Thistelon and her dogs were in the Vancouver police court the other day. The lady was her own counsel and conducted both the prosecution and defence, made out a counter information against the husband of the complainant, tried the case, and found him guilty. She claimed that dogs had the right of way of the city pavements. If people would keep their children off the streets they would not be scared of dogs. Would the court rule railways out of order because a horse was frightened at the whistle of a locomotive? Dogs were useful and more intelligent than some children. When the police magistrate had sufficiently recovered his power of articulation he ventured gently to remark that he was sorry to put a lady to any inconvenience but was under the painful necessity of fining her $1 and costs.

RELIGION FOR BUSY MEN

A LESSON DRAWN FROM DANIEL IN THE LION'S DEN.

Dr. Talmage Shows That the More Work You Have to Do the More Need You Have for Christianity—God and the Ballot Box.

WACO, Tex., Aug. 31.—Dr. Talmage today delivered the following discourse on the text: "Then the king commanded, and they brought Daniel and cast him into the den of lions."—Daniel vi, 16.

Darius was king of Babylon, and the greatest man. Daniel was so evidently favored with him that he made him prime minister, or secretary of state. But no man could gain such a high position without exciting the envy and jealousy of the people. There were demagogues in Babylon who were so appreciative of their own abilities that they were affronted at the elevation of this young man. Old Babylon was afraid of young Babylon. The taller the cedar the more apt it is to be riven of the lightning.

These demagogues asked the king to make a decree that anybody that made a petition to any one except the king within thirty days should be put to death. King Darius, not suspecting any foul play, makes that decree. The demagogues have accomplished all they want, because they know that no one can keep Daniel from sending petitions before God for thirty days.

So far from being afraid, Daniel goes on with his supplications three times a day, and is found on his housetop making prayer. He is caught in the act. He is condemned to be devoured by the lions. Rough executioners of the law seize him and hasten him to the cavern. I hear the growl of the wild beasts, and I see them pawing the dust, and as they put their mouths to the ground the solid earth quakes with their bellowing. I see their eyes roll, and I almost hear the fiery eyeballs snap in the darkness. These monsters approach Daniel. They have an appetite keen with hunger. With one stroke of their paw or one snatch of their teeth they may leave him dead at the bottom of the cavern. But what a strange welcome Daniel receives from these hungry monsters! They fawn around him; they lick his hand; they bury his feet in their long manes. That night he has calm sleep, with his head pillowed on the warm necks of the tamed lions.

THE LIONS' MOUTHS WERE SHUT.

But not so well does Darius the king sleep. He loves Daniel, and hates this stratagem by which he has been condemned. All night long the king walks the floor. He cannot sleep. At the least sound he starts and his flesh creeps with horror. He is impatient for the dawning of the morning. At the first streak of the daylight Darius hastens forth to see the fate of Daniel. The heavy palace doors open and clang shut long before the people of the city waken. Darius goes to the den of lions; he looks in. All is silent. His heart stops. He feels that the very worst has happened; but gathering all his strength he shouts through the rifts of the rock. "O Daniel! is the God whom thou servest continually able to deliver thee?" There comes rolling up from the deep darkness a voice which says: "O king! live forever. My God has sent his angel to close the lions' mouths that they have not hurt me."

Then Daniel is brought out from the den. The demagogues are hurled into it, and no sooner have they struck the bottom of the den than their flesh was rent, and their bones cracked, and there blood spurted through the rifts of the rock, and as the lions make the rocks tremble with their roar they announce to all ages that while God will defend his people the way of the ungodly shall perish.

Learn first from this subject that the greatest crime that you can commit in the eyes of many is the crime of success. What had Daniel done that he should be flung to the lions? He got to be prime minister. They could not forgive him for that, and behold in that a touch of unsanctified human nature as seen in all ages of the world. So long as you are pinched in poverty, so long as you are running the gantlet between landlord and tax gatherer, so long as you find it hard work to educate your children, there are people who will say, "Poor man, I am sorry for him; he ought to succeed, poor man!"

THE PENALTY OF SUCCESS.

But after a while the tide turns in your favor. That was a profitable investment you made. You bought at just the right time. Fortune becomes good humored and smiles upon you. Now you are being in some department successful your success chills some one. Those men who used to sympathize with you stand along the street, and they scowl at you from under the rim of their hats. You have more money or more influence than they have, and you ought to be scowled at from under the rim of their hats. You catch a word or two as you passed by them. "Stuck up," says one. "Got it dishonestly," says another. "Will burst soon," says a third. Every stone in your new house is laid on their hearts. Your horse's hoofs went over their nerves.

Every item of your success has been to them an item of discomfiture and despair. Just as soon as in any respect you rise above your fellows, if you are more virtuous, if you are more wise, if you are more influential, you cast a shadow on the prospect of others. The road to honor and success is within reach of the enemy's guns. Jealousy says, "Stay down or I'll knock you down." "I do not like you," said the snowflake to the snowbird. "Why don't you like me?" said the snowbird. "Oh!" said the snowflake, "you are going up and I am coming down." Young merchants, young lawyers, young doctors, young mechanics, young artists, young farmers, at certain times there were those to sympathize with you, but now that you are becoming master of your particular occupation or profession, how is it now, young lawyers, young doctors, young artists, young farmers—how is it now? The greatest crime that you can commit is the crime of success.

Again, my subject impresses me with the value of decision of character in any department. Daniel knew that if he continued his adherence to the religion of the Lord he would be hurled to the lions, but having set his compass well he sailed right on.

MAKE UP YOUR MIND.

For the lack of that element of decision of character so eminent in Daniel many men are ruined for this world, and ruined for the world to come. A great many at 40 years of age are not settled in any respect, because they have not been able to make up their mind. Perhaps they will go west. Perhaps they will go east. Perhaps they will not. Perhaps they will go north. Perhaps they may go south. Perhaps they will not. Perhaps they may make that investment in real estate or in railroads. Perhaps they will not. They are like a steamer that should go out of New York harbor, starting for Glasgow, and she next day should change for Havre de Grace, and the next for Charleston, and the next for Boston, and the next for Liverpool—those men on the sea of life, everlastingly tacking ship and making no headway. Or they are like a man who starts to build a house in the Corinthian style and changes it to Doric, and then completes it in the Ionic, and is cursed by all styles of architecture.

Young man, start right and keep on. Have decision of character. Character is like the goldfinch of Tonquin: it is magnificent while standing firm, but loses all its beauty in flight. How much decision of character in order that these young men may be Christians! Their old associates make sarcastic flings at them. They go on the race, and other do not do so. They prophesy that he will give out. They wonder if he is not getting wings. As he passes they grimace and wink and chuckle, and say, "There goes a saint."

DON'T MIND THEIR SCOFFS.

Oh, young man, have decision of character. You can afford in this matter of religion to be laughed at. What do you care for the scoffs of these men, who are affronted because you will not go to ruin with them? When the grave cracks open under their feet, and grim messengers push them into it, and eternity comes down hard upon their spirit, and conscience stings, and hopeless ruin lifts them up to hurl them down, will they laugh then?

I learn also from my subject that men may take religion into their worldly business. Daniel had enough work to do to occupy six men. All the affairs of state were in his hands—questions of finance, questions of war, of peace, all international questions were for his settlement or adjustment. He must have had a correspondence vast beyond all computation. There was not a man in all the earth who had more to do than Daniel, the secretary of state, and yet we find him three times a day bowing before God in prayer. There are men in our day who have not a hundredth part of Daniel's engagements who say they are too busy to be religious. They have an idea somehow that religion will spoil their worldly occupation, that it will trip the accountant's pen, or dull the carpenter's saw, or confuse the lawyer's brief, or disarrange the merchant's store shelf.

INCONVENIENT RELIGION.

They think religion is impertinent. They would like to have it very well seated beside them in church on the Sabbath, to find the place in the psalm book, or to nudge them awake when they get sleepy under the didactic discourse; or they would like to leave it in the pew on Sabbath evening, as they go out closing the door, saying, "Good night, religion; I'll be back next Sunday!" But to have religion go right along by them all through life, to have religion looking over their shoulder when they are making a bargain, to have religion take up a bag of dishonest gold and shake it, and say, "Ha! ha! where did you get that?"—they think that is an impertinent religion. They would like to have a religion to help them when they are sick, and when the shadow of death comes over them they would like to have religion as a sort of night key with which to open the door of heaven; but religion under other circumstances they take to be an impertinence. Now, my friends, religion never robbed a man of a dollar. Other things being equal, a mason will build a better wall, a cabinet maker will make a better chair, a plumber will make a better pipe, a lawyer will make a better plea, a merchant will sell a better bill of goods.

I say other things being equal. Of course when religion gives a man a new heart it does not propose to give him a new head, or to intellectualize him, or to change a man's condition when his ordinary state is an overthrow of the philosophical theory that a total vacuum is impossible; but the more letters you have to write, the more burdens you have to carry, the more miles you have to travel, the more burdens you have to lift, the more engagements you have to meet, the more disputes you have to settle, the more opportunity you have of being a Christian.

HARD WORK AND RELIGION.

If you have a thousand irons in the fire you have a thousand more opportunities of serving God than if you had only one iron in the fire. Who so busy as Christ? And yet who a millionth part as holy? The busiest men the best men. All the persons converted in Scripture busy at the time of their being converted. Matthew attending to his custom house duties; the Prodigal Son feeding swine; Lydia selling purple; Simon Peter hauling in the net from the sea; Saul spurring his horse toward Damascus, going down on his law business. Busy! busy! Daniel with all the affairs of state weighing down upon his soul, and yet three times a day worshiping the God of heaven.

Again, I learn from this subject that a man may take religion into his politics. Daniel had all the affairs of state on hand, yet a Christian. He could not have kept his elevated position unless he had been a thorough politician; and yet all the thrusts of officials and all the danger of disgrace did not make him yield one iota of his high toned religious principle. He stood before that age, he stands before all ages, a specimen of a Christian politician.

So there have been in our day and in the days of our fathers men as eminent in the service of God as they have been eminent in the service of the state. Such was Benjamin F. Butler, attorney general of New York in the time of your fathers. Such was John McLean, of Ohio. Such was George Briggs, of Massachusetts. Such was Theodore Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey. Men faithful to the state, at the same time faithful to God.

THE RISING GENERATION.

It is absurd to expect that men who have been immersed in political wickedness for thirty or forty years shall come to reformation; and our hope is in the young men who are coming up, that they have patriotic principle and Christian principle side by side when they come to the ballot box and cast their first vote, and that they swear allegiance to the government of heaven as well as to the government of the United States. We would have Bunker Hill mean less to them than Calvary, and Lexington mean less to them than Bethlehem.

But because there are bad men around the ballot box is no reason why Christian men should retreat from the arena. The last time you ought to give up your child or forsake your child is when it is surrounded by a company of Choctaws; and the last time to surrender the ballot box is when it is surrounded by impurity and dishonesty and all sorts of wickedness.

Daniel stood on a most unpopular platform. He stood firmly, though the demagogues of the day hissed at him and tried to overthrow him. We must carry our religion into our politics. But there are a great many men who are in favor of taking religion into national politics who do not see the importance of taking it into city politics; as though a man were intelligent about the welfare of his neighborhood and had no concern about his own home.

Religion would drive out all base personalities from politics. You have a right to discuss men's politics and denounce their political sentiments, or receive them, as you will; but you have no right to assail their private character, as is done every autumn. That is not carrying religion into politics. Now you can always tell without asking, in any contest, what candidate I will vote for. It is always for the man who is most badgered, and most abused, and most spit upon, and most howled at. You have a right to contest a man's political sentiments; you have no right, for base political purposes, to assail his private moral character.

My subject also impresses me with the fact that lions cannot hurt a good man. No man ever got into worse company than Daniel got into when he was thrown into the den. What a rare morsel that fair young man would have been for the hungry monsters! If they had pounced at him he could not have climbed into a niche beyond the reach of their paw or the snatch of their tooth. They came pleased all around about him as a hunter's hounds at the well known whistle come bounding to his feet.

You need not go to Numidia to get among lions. You all have had them after you—the lion of financial distress, the lion of sickness, the lion of persecution. You saw that lion of financial panic putting his mouth down to the earth, and he roared until all the banks and all the insurance companies quaked. With his nostril he scattered the ashes on the domestic hearth. You have had trial after trial, misfortune after misfortune, lion after lion; and yet they have never hurt you if you put your trust in God, and they never will hurt you. They did not hurt Daniel, and they cannot hurt you.

TEARS OF SORROW.

The Persians used to think that spring rain falling into sea shells would turn into pearls; and I have to tell you that the tears of sorrow turn into precious gems when they drop into God's bottle. You need be afraid of nothing putting your trust in God. Even death, that monster lion whose den is the world's sepulcher, and who puts his paw down amid thousands of millions of the dead, cannot affright you.

When in olden times a man was to get the honors of knighthood he was compelled to go fully armed the night before among the tombs of the dead, carrying a sort of spear, and then when the day broke he would come forth, and amid the sound of cornet and great parade he would get the honors of knighthood. And so it will be with the Christian in the night before heaven, as fully armed with spear and helmet of salvation he will wait and watch through the darkness until the morning dawns, and then he will take the honors of heaven amid that great throng with snowy robes streaming over seas of sapphire.

MIZNER ASSASSINATED.

Barrundia's Daughter Charges the Minister with Her Father's Death.

CITY OF GUATEMALA, Sept. 1.—The daughter of General Barrundia attempted to shoot United States Minister Mizner to-day.

Mizner was at his desk translating the guarantee given to him by this Government that Barrundia's life would be spared in case he was surrendered, when the young woman came into the office, revolver in hand, and accused him of being directly the cause of her father's death and announced that she intends to kill him. Mizner tried to reason with the girl, but finally she pulled the trigger of her pistol. Mizner had taken up a heavy law book and the bullet buried itself in its leaves.

The shot attracted attention, and before a second could be fired assistance arrived. Throughout the entire exciting interview Mizner maintained the utmost coolness.

The police were called in and the young woman arrested. She proved to be Christina Barrundia, daughter of the dead revolutionist. Mizner will not prosecute the lady, and insists that no further notice be taken of the affair.

It is generally believed here that Barrundia would have been in no danger of death had he not resisted arrest.

BARRUNDIA'S FAMILY PROTEST.

CITY OF MEXICO, Sept. 1st.—The following is a cable sent by the widow and children of General Barrundia to President Harrison:

The wife and children of Jose Martin Barrundia protest before you with the greatest indignation and sorrow that our beloved husband and father has been vilely assassinated on board an American steamer at San Jose, where he was found, under the shelter of the American flag; and his death, illegally consummated by the Government of Guatemala is due to the criminal and officious interference of Minister Mizner, who ordered the captain of the steamer to deliver up the general. We protest before you against this savage deed, and we expect from your rectitude and justice, that you will demand due reparation for an outrage of which we are inconsolable victims.

PATENT OFFICE CRANKS.

The Queer Inventions That Are Sent to Be Investigated.

To fully realize how many cranks live among us one has only to visit the Patent Office in Washington, says the New York Herald, and examine the models which fill the shelves of that department and read the specifications, in which are set forth in glowing terms the many benefits which they propose to donate to mankind. Every imaginable scheme is suggested and laid before the patent examiners. The question of utility, of practicability, does not enter into the taking out of a patent; it suffices that the invention has the feature of novelty and that the applicant pay the legal fees.

So numerous are the "perpetual motion" cranks, who think they have discovered the long and vainly sought enigma, that the office has prepared a circular which is mailed to any one who takes steps to enter an alleged perpetual motion invention. The circular informs him "that it is thought proper to advise him, in order to save him further expense and labor, that the views of the Patent Office coincide with those of scientists in general in regard to mechanical perpetual motions—that they are impossibilities. Should your entry be taken, a working model will be required, the office being aware that it will be impossible for you to comply with this requirement." The specification and fee are then returned. Does this dampen their ardor? Doubtless thousands of them are now trying to compass the working model.

Many of the old models were burned up in the fire of 1877, and tradition only tells of some of the queer contrivances that had been gathered in.

One of the most curious of these was a hen's nest constructed with a spring trap at the bottom of the nest. The weight of an egg was sufficient to press down the spring and allow the egg to slip out. The theory of this thoughtful inventor was that as soon as the hen laid an egg it would press down the trap-door and disappear. The hen, as is her custom after laying an egg, would rise and cackle, but finding no egg, would conclude that she had made a mistake and would proceed immediately to lay another, and so on ad infinitum. On this principle the owner of a hen would have a great monopoly.

A trip through the model rooms revealed many unique and curious inventions, some of the more unusual of which I venture to describe and illustrate.

One of the most original is an ordnance plow, patented by C. M. French and W. H. Fancher, of Waterloo, N. Y., in June, 1862. The object of the invention was to produce a plow equal in point of strength and lightness to the one ordinarily in use and yet which would combine the elements of a small sized cannon, so that it could be utilized by the frontier settler both for defensive purposes as well as agricultural.

The beam or tongue of the plow to which the horses or oxen are yoked is in fact a gun barrel or piece of light ordnance capable of throwing a projectile of one to three pounds weight without rendering it cumbersome as a plow.

The plowshare takes the place of a gun carriage and serves to anchor the improvised cannon firmly in the ground and enable it to resist the recoil, while the handles furnish means of giving the plow or gun, as the case may be, direction or aim. To use the language of the inventors: "as a means of defense in repelling surprises and attacks on those engaged in a peaceful avocation it is unrivaled, as it can be instantly brought into action by disengaging the team, and in time of danger may be used charged with deadly grape. This combination enables those in agricultural pursuits to have at hand an efficient weapon of defense at slight expense, in addition to a common and indispensible implement, and one hardly inferior to expensive light ordnance on wheels." With due deference to the originality of the conception of the inventors, it does not appear that the "plough gun" or "gun plough" has come into very general use.

UNIVERSITIES.

University, in its academical signification, has been defined "a universal school in which are taught all branches of learning, or the four faculties of theology, law, medicine and arts, and in which degrees are conferred in these faculties." In modern times, however, it may be defined as "the whole members of an incorporated body of persons, teaching or learning one or more departments of knowledge, and empowered by the constituted authorities to confer degrees in one or more faculties."

It is impossible to fix the period when Universities were first established, but it is supposed that the oldest universities in Europe sprang up in the twelfth century. Some of the oldest universities, however, have traditions of their foundation at a more remote period by royal or imperial authority. The oldest in Europe were those in Paris and Bologna. Tradition has assigned the origin of the University of Paris to CHARLEMAGNE, about the beginning of the 9th century. Pope NICHOLAS IV, towards the end of the 13th century, conferred upon this University the additional privilege that the doctors who were there approved should everywhere have the power of teaching, lecturing and directing schools, and should enjoy the privileges and rank of Doctor throughout Christendom. The inferior degree of Bachelor is said to have been instituted by GREGORY IX, between 1227 and 1241, and the name is supposed to be derived from bacilla (little staves), either because they were admitted by receiving a little wand, or because they adopted the titles of the novices of the soldiery, who exercised with sticks in order to learn to fight with swords.

In all old universities the Chancellor was the fountain of honor, the officer by whose authority degrees were conferred, and this dignity brought along with it considerable power. He chose his own deputies or vice-chancellors, appointed annual examiners of candidates for degrees, but had no power to interfere in the internal government of the University. The University of Bologna, it is alleged, was established by the Emperor T. LEODOSIUS in 433, and after it had fallen into decay was restored by CHARLEMAGNE. This University started suddenly into celebrity in the early part of the 12th century when IRNERIUS began to teach the Roman law.

The English Universities like most of those which came into existence in remote times, were formed on the model of Paris, and in the earlier period of their history bear a striking resemblance to the parent institution. Till 1836 England had only two Universities, those of Oxford and Cambridge. The Oxford antiquaries contend that it was a seminary of learning immediately after the destruction of Troy, whilst those of Cambridge ascribe the origin of their University to one CANTABER, a Spaniard, by whom it was founded B. C. 375 and from whom it obtained the name of Cantabrigia. These speculations may amuse and interest the curious, but they cannot be admitted as historical facts.

The first reference to any public instrument where the term University is applied to Oxford is in 1201, an earlier date than any extant application of the word to Paris. The Kings of England considered the universities as not amenable to ecclesiastical superintendence, and took them under their own peculiar authority. The term University as applied to Cambridge appears in a public instrument of 1223. The right of visitation and inspection of the University of Cambridge is vested in the Sovereign.

The University of Cambridge was formally incorporated, 13 Eliz., chap 29, by the name of the "Chancellor, Masters and Scholars of the University of Cambridge." The University of London is of recent date, and was created in 1836 by a royal charter of WILLIAM IV, granted during Royal will and pleasure, and was confirmed by a new charter granted by Queen VICTORIA. The body corporate consists of a chancellor, a vice-chancellor, fellows and graduates. The Queen is the visitor.

The University of Durham was founded in 1649, during the time of the Commonwealth, and the protectorate of OLIVER CROMWELL, by letters patent; but lay sleeping until 1837, when a Royal charter was granted under the great seal incorporating the persons therein mentioned under the name of the "Wardens, Masters and Scholars of the University of Durham," with all the rights and privileges which are assumed to the University by the Act of Parliament or are incident to a University established by Royal charter.

The Scottish Universities owe their origin to a lady. Soon after the middle of the 13th century DERVORGUILLA, mother of JOHN BALIOL, King of Scotland, founded and endowed a college at Oxford for Scottish students. In 1413 the University of St. Andrews was founded and the rights and privileges of the University were ratified by JAMES I in 1432, and it was also formed on the model of those of Paris and Bologna.

The University of Glasgow, founded in 1450, by Pope NICHOLAS V, had granted to it all the rights and privileges belonging to the University of Bologna.

The University of Aberdeen, founded in 1494 by Pope ALEXANDER VI on the representation of JAMES IV.

The University of Edinburgh, was founded in 1582 by JAMES VI. The most striking circumstance in the establishment of this university is that it is not erected into an independent seminary, but is subject in all essential points to the Provost, magistrates and council of the city. To them is committed the superintendence of it, the appointment of professors and the privilege of removing them. This control by the town council was abolished in 1858.

The University of Dublin was founded in 1591. Queen's University was founded in 1850 by letters patent, the seat of which is in the city of Dublin. The Queen is visitor. The Government is responsible.

Mr. Justice FORTESCUE, of England, states that all degrees were originally given by the Crown, and though the present right of conferring them is prescribed for by the University, yet that prescription must be presumed to be founded upon a right derived by authority from the Crown, so that a person advanced to the degree of doctor, etc., may be esteemed to be advanced by the King. There were no degrees among the Grecians or Romans, nor among the first Christians; they began about the 12th or 13th century, and have since been attended with great privileges and profits. Universitas is the proper Latin word for corporation. There were no degrees ever granted at Cambridge until the university was a corporation.

ROYAL ROADS TO FARMING.

Englishmen, for sensible people, are the biggest fools on earth. We make use of this paradox as illustrative of the queer stupidity in Englishmen is paying handsome premiums for the privilege of learning the modus operandi of farming, when by hiring themselves out as do ordinary people, they might combine pecuniary profit with agricultural experience in all of its phases and ramifications. The idea is strictly English, you know. It has no counterpart on this side of the footstool. Not even the untutored savage is simple enough to assess himself that he may learn the arts of the white man. It is just possible, however, that there is method in the Englishman's madness; that somewhat influenced by the prejudice of caste; that dubious of his possible associates as a common farm hand, and that, as likely as not lazy withal, he prefers the royal road to farming as is implied in the premium business. As an apprentice, paying his way he is privileged; he is permitted to obtain his knowledge of farming through the medium of the eye rather than through the agency of the muscles; and it is pretty safe to say that having finished his visual probation, he is but a 'prentice hand still. The good sailor must be familiar with the practical details of his profession. So must the good farmer. Even as the sailor must be as familiar with practice as with precept so must he be who would succeed at farming. Farming is generally accounted hard work. Long hours and one ceaseless grind. Sunshiny days the fields, rainy days the woodsheds, an endless chain of toil. This is farming as it used to be, and we suppose it is so yet, and on the whole, if farming can be learned by the royal road of premium paying, so much the better, the spirit is saved much tribulation, and the muscles many an ache. But farming cannot be learned by this method any more than a passenger on board ship can learn to become a sailor. Besides the central object of farming—crop raising—there are a group of incidentals such as fence repairing, hoeing, grubbing, weeding, milking, and all that sort of thing, that must be learned and performed day after day and year after year with religious promptitude and exactness. In short, he who would be a farmer must first suffer. He must know the torture of early rising, of milking after dark, and of learning a calf how to drink. He must learn how to possess his soul of patience when the "old man" sets him to sawing wood in the woodshed of a rainy day, or requires him to pick over potatoes in the cellar, or, if the day be fitfully rainy, sets him to repairing fences or tinkering about the barn repairing dungfork handles or badly shaken hay racks. These are the incidentals, or perhaps we should say, the essential concomitants of farming, which not only must be learned, but which the neophite must accustom himself to perform as a labor of love if he would succeed as a husbandman.

But why does farming besides incurring hard work present features which drive farmers' sons to the cities in droves? It is largely the "old man's" fault. He drives. Brought up in a vicious school himself, driven when a 'prentice hand, he repeats the dose in the case of his own family and of his hired men. "The early bird catches the worm" is his motto, and he carries out the principle regardless of rhyme or reason. Boys who should be permitted to sleep until six a. m. are dragged out of their beds two hours earlier, and through the live long day until dark the "old man" busies himself seeing that every moment of time is industriously employed. Do the boys desire to go trouting of a rainy day, the permission is granted by the "old man" as a concession, and in respect to all relaxations they come from him as a gracious act of clemency, and not as a right to which young people are morally and physically entitled. Among farmers of the old school there is mighty little balm in Gilead.

There is no occasion for the farmer to rise earlier than the sun nor to remain afield after that luminary is set. An intelligent conception of his vocation followed by an intelligent application of methods and principles make farming the easiest and most independent of occupations. But main strength and awkwardness is more often the practice of the "old man" than intelligent application. We have known farmers to accuse their boys of laziness because of their having hit on some device to lighten labor. "I suffered when I was a boy" says the old man, "you shall suffer; it is part of the business." No wonder that farming of late years has fallen into disrepute. Nor after all, come to think it calmly over, do we wonder that Englishmen prefer the royal road to farming.

LABOR NOTES.

It turns out that the railroad switchmen's strike in Buffalo, which grew out of that in New York in some way not hitherto explained, was ordered without authority by the Knights of Labor emissary, who managed in some way to convey the impression that he came from the grand president of the switchmen's union and that the strike had been decreed by him. After the men went out they discovered their mistake, through the statement of the grand president that he had not ordered the strike. Here comes the curious part of the story. It might naturally be supposed that, on learning this, the men would have gone back to work. They explain, however, that they were afraid to do this, without orders from the grand president, lest they should be accused of being non-union men. The grand president in turn, not having ordered the strike, did not feel called upon to order it off. Consequently the men remained out until the strike fell to pieces of its own weight. Their places are filled, the road is running smoothly, and they are permanently out of work. They have no claim upon the corporation which they left in the lurch. They have no right to appeal to their labor organization, since they struck without its orders. They seem deserted and friendless all around. Thus it should appear that we have an organization without head or tail. But possibly the Knights will profit by their errors, or, failing in this, they do not deserve to win.

Labor has yet one thing to learn, before it can become really formidable, and that is sympathy for each other as represented in the various trades. JOHN BURNS, discussing this point not long ago, remarked to an interviewer that one of the principle reasons which led him to devote himself to the labor cause in England was the want of sympathy among workingmen for each other. Ten years ago, says BURNS, there was here as much difference in caste between a carpenter or an engineer and an unskilled laborer as exists between a member of the House of Lords and a member of a vestry, and the principal reason that the recent strikes here have been so successful is that all branches of skilled and unskilled labor have come to recognize each other as brothers.

Labor must fraternize. Universal brotherhood instead of caste must prevail. BURNS finds it hard to understand why the B. L. E. failed to come to the assistance of the Knights. In refusing to fraternize with co-laborers though of a different class they simply pave the way to their own destruction. So soon as the Knights are overthrown the B. L. E. will have to go too. It is morally certain that labor has much to learn in the way of organization and in executive ability after having become organized.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

In reference to our remarks, a few days ago, and in confirmation of them, we may state that the Canadian mail of the 21st ultimo which should bring the Thursday's English papers, is a week overdue. The papers of Wednesday, the 20th, have been here for fully a week, but "Punch," "The Canadian Gazette," "Truth" and the "World"—all published for posting on Thursday—have not come. Correspondents and English correspondents should always post their letters and papers "via New York."

Lord BOYLE, the young Earl of Shannon, formerly a ranchman in the Canadian Northwest and a member of the Northwest council, has taken possession of the estates which became his by the death of his father. His experience in America and the knowledge of human nature which he acquired in his wanderings have not been thrown away. The young earl has been investigating the condition of his Irish tenantry, and intends to reside in Cork and manage his estates without the aid of middlemen. He says he is a thorough Irishman, and believes that the prosperity of both people and landowners would be promoted if the latter would more generally reside on or near their estates and make themselves part and parcel of the community where their financial interests are located.

Mr. WM. WOLFENDEN, election agent for GORDON EDWARD CORBOULD, has certified to that gentleman's election expenses, as follows:

Printing Election Address	$521 57
Voters' Lists	128 40
Personal Expenses	135 00
Rent of Halls	35 00
Total	$819 97

Mr. CORBOULD evidently appreciates the labor of the newspapers, and in paying $521.57 to three or four papers he showed his good sense. But there are candidates and candidates. All are not as appreciative of the press as Mr. CORBOULD, and some even expect the paper which, rightly or wrongly, is regarded as "the party organ," to publish column after column of "editorial matter" in their interest and to assist their election. The unfortunate newspaper in the meantime raises up a storm of opposition, from which it suffers for years. But we forget—this is the mercenary view of party politics, and editors should not be mercenary. They must work only for the public good, and never have a thought of being recouped or rewarded in this evil world. The thanks of the beneficiaries is all the quid pro quo the independent journalist ever expects to receive.

Montreal Herald: In disposing of Mr. BLAINE's arguments and proposing an arbitration Lord SALISBURY has pleased the general public of Great Britain. Some of the English newspapers speak of Mr. BLAINE's silly arguments and use the term "American bluster." In so far as Americans are responsible for their Government's actions there has, of course, been some American bluster, but it should be remembered that from the American press and Americans generally there has been very little bluster. The leading American journals and prominent men, not Secretaries of State lost very little time in finding out and acknowledging that the United States claims to hold the Behring Sea as a mare clausum could not be sustained and should be abandoned. Probably Mr. BLAINE is just as strongly of that opinion as anyone else, and in arguing the other way merely regarded himself as an officer, the advocate of the United States, and an advocate with certain party advantages or disadvantages to consider. Perhaps if the truth were known, no one is better pleased than Mr. BLAINE at the proposal for an arbitration, for he may congratulate himself on having practically manœuvered Lord SALISBURY into it, and at any rate it gives the Americans all the chances of winning something, to which by International law they are not entitled.

BAPTIST CONVENTION.

Last evening's session opened at 7.30, and the first half hour was devoted to song and prayer led by Rev. E. G. Wheeler.

The report of the Board of Education which was presented dealt first with the condition of Grace Seminary at Centralia. There is a compus of 8 acres and a building valued at $15,000, an excellent faculty is employed and is at work. An endowment is already secured of $3,600. The liabilities including the amount needed to furnish the building, are $11,463.70; assets, consisting of land now on the market in addition to the compus, valued at $7,775.41, leaving a debt unprovided for of $3,688.29.

The chief matter of interest in the report, however, was the matter relating to the establishment of a seminary at Seattle. The church has been offered certain tracts of land, and $15,000 in cash has already been pledged, which it is hoped can be made up to $50,000. A lively discussion followed the reading of the report, there being some diversity of opinion, but the recommendation to erect the school was carried by a large majority.

TO-DAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

The last day of the convention opened at 9 o'clock this morning with devotional exercises, led by Rev. Collins, after which general business was taken up. It was decided to hold the next annual session, beginning on the Thursday following the last Sunday of August 1891, when Rev. M.L. Rugg will preach the introductory sermon, Rev Downie the foreign missions sermon and Rev. J. W. Reid on home missions.

The following gentlemen were elected as the home mission board: Revs. M. L. Rugg, A. B. Banks, D. D., D. J. Pierce Garlich, G J. Burchett, William Weir, Thos. Baldwin, J. H. Best, J. W. Reid and Brothers Houghton, Morill, D. M. Ross, Pres. E. T. Trimble, R. Knipe, John Anderson, G. W. Ward, C. A. Carender, Dr. C. A. Walsh, H. M. Butter, A. Longrew, and B. W. John.

The resolution committee presented a partial report which contained the following resolution: Resolved, that the members of this convention return thanks to the churches and people of Victoria for the hearty welcome and generous entertainment given the committee by them.

A committee consisting of Revs. M. L. Rugg, Banks D. D., Trimble, Reid, and Sutherland, was appointed to present to the next convention a place for the organization of a society for the promotion of ministerial education in the churches of this convention.

The report of the commission on Foreign Missions was then read, and followed by a general discussion on the subject in which a number of delegates took part. Dr. Pierce spoke of the work among the Chinese in Portland, which he said had been very successful, due a great deal to the liberality of the brethren who had helped him.

General business being resumed, it was resolved that the energy and ability brought to the home mission work through the superintendent of missions, Rev. Sutherland, causing the work to be prosecuted with an enthusiasm unprecedented in the history of the convention, and furthermore, since the prosecution is practically paid for, the hearty endorsement of the conventions representation is hereby recorded.

The session then adjourned until 2 o'clock, when the report of the committee on Sunday school work was read and followed by a general discussion. The report of the committee on religious literature and temperance were also read and discussed.

This evening at 7.30 at mass meeting will be held for the consideration of Sunday schools and young people's work of the churches. At 11 a.m. tomorrow Rev. J. F. Annes will preach on the Foreign Missions, and in the evening Rev. A. B. Banks will preach on Home Mission.

NAUTICAL NOTES.

Items of Interest Along the Water Front—General Marine News.

The steamer Elder is due from Alaska on Monday.

Masts were placed in the old steamer Alexander this morning.

The steamer Boscowitz left for the north last night with a heavy freight.

The British ship Thiorva, Captain Fraser, 1187 tons, has left Hong Kong for Victoria.

The bark Titania was towed into the harbor this morning and will commence discharging on Monday.

The bark Augusta, 980 tons, Captain Gilmore, has arrived at Vancouver to load lumber from Morse's mill for Valparaiso.

The steamer City of Puebla left for San Francisco this morning with a full load of freight and passengers. She took 5000 cases salmon, 20 tons of rice and a lot of miscellaneous from this port.

Thursday morning while going out of Vancouver harbor the tug Mystery, of this port, ran on the mud flat near the mouth of the Narrows. The fog was so thick that it was utterly impossible to distinguish anything. She got off later without damage.

The Pacific Coast Steamship Company is said to be contemplating a line between Portland and Sound ports. Upon the return of the steamship Geo. W. Elder from Alaska she will go to Portland, and the fine, staunch steamship Mexico will take her place on the Alaskan run.

The Marine Department saw fit to build a light house and fog bell tower on Brockton Point this summer. The machinery has been in for some time, but for some unaccountable reason no keeper has been installed. This is the season of the year at which the bell is most needed and the authorities should attend to the matter at once.

RIOT AND BLOODSHED.

A dispatch from Panama gives an account of the rioting that characterized the recent strikes in Valparaiso, Chili. It seems that the launchmen and stevedores struck in the morning and soon compelled the workmen in the Custom House to cease their labor. The strikers demanded payment in coin, not in notes, and this demand caused the doors of the Custom House to be closed, a step which was promptly followed by most of the business houses throughout the city. The strikers then formed a mob and visited several manufacturing establishments, doing much damage. A number of citizens appealed to the authorities to act, but they remained passive for several hours, during which much rioting and plundering was going on.

Finally, after eight men had been wounded and twelve killed, the authorities determined to send out military pickets and defend the public offices. By this time the mob, which was divided into three sections, was busily engaged in plundering and destroying stores in the streets not visited in the morning, compelling workmen in all places to quit and fighting where they were resisted. At a bakery in one street twelve men were killed. The bakery and several adjoining stores were sacked. Finally a picket of soldiers appeared and asked the plunderers to withdraw. As they did not do so the soldiers withdrew.

Similar scenes were at the same time being enacted in other quarters of the city. The railway shops were completely destroyed, as well as the manufactories in the vicinity, and their contents were thrown into the sea. While the mob was engaged in sacking the National Biscuit Factory, troops arrived, and the mob not retiring, opened fire, killing one of the rioters and wounding four others. By this time, however, the crowd numbered at least ten thousand, and although repeatedly charged by the police, who used sabres, it stood its ground. Some twenty of its members were killed and seriously wounded.

Viewed from the beach, the scene on the hill was horrible. The police were seen, sabres in hand, charging here and there. The mob offered some resistance and wounded several policemen. But order was temporarily restored with the assistance of two fresh pickets and by stationing another company of artillery near the railway station.

By 5 p.m. the mob had almost disappeared to the drinking-shops and groggeries. At the time the foregoing scenes were being enacted many others of a similar character were in progress in other parts. At 7 p.m. a body of policemen charged on the mob and made five prisoners. At the same time a band of rioters passed through Victoria street, smashing doors, windows, lamps, etc., and crying "Pillage, Pillage." They plundered many houses. There was not a single soldier in sight. During the night, however, the streets were patrolled by troops. At 7.20 p.m. the cavalry pickets made several charges in the Amandral, where stores were being sacked. In Condell street a mob attacked some jewelry stores. The pickets arrived after all was over. At 9.30 p.m. trains arrived with a battalion commanded by General Valdivieso, and subsequently a corps 500 strong arrived. The Intendente and Commander of police had almost fraternized with the strikers. On the hills around Valparaiso many outrages and robberies were committed. At Santiago somewhat similar rioting occurred at the session of the Deputies.

THE PRECIOUS SEALS.

CONVERSATION ON THE SUBJECT WITH MR. S. WEBSTER.

The Main Features of the Subject—Supposed to be More a Political than an Equable Question—A Solution of the Difficulty Suggested.

PARIS, Aug. 29.—I have had a conversation [illegible] presented in the recently published parliamentary blue book; with Mr. Sidney Webster, whose professional advice was asked in 1869-70, more than 20 years ago, on the very question that is now burning so fiercely at Washington and Ottawa. "The intervening period of twenty-three years since 1867 has not," Mr. Webster said, "added anything new, in law or fact in regard to the present right of the Government at Washington to arrest and detain vessels, Canadian or American, entering Behring Sea for the purpose of killing fur seals excepting the new contentions this year set forth by the Canadian Government respecting the habits of the fur seal, their increasing numbers in the Behring Sea, despite Canadian marauding, and the further averment, which is also quite novel, that if the United States will only prevent indiscriminate slaughter on their own islands, there will be seals enough in Behring Sea for everybody, and especially for the Canadians."

"For how long a period did outsiders acquiesce in the exercise by Russia and the United States of the claim to exclude poachers from killing seals in Behring Sea?"

"Down to 1883 or thereabouts," replied Mr. Webster.

THE SEA OPEN TO INNOCENT NAVIGATION.

"It must be borne in mind," continued Mr. Webster, "that none of the Behring sea has either by Russia or the United States ever been closed to innocent navigation. Whalers have always navigated it on the way to and through Behring Straits. The United States never closed our part of the sea to British or any other vessels sailing on lawful business. The entire navy of England may go there. Congress and the Treasury Department have, however, forbidden killing fur seals in these waters, and as such systematic killing by the Canadians began to manifest itself at the end of President Arthur's Administration, the work of arresting it fell on President Cleveland's Administration in 1884, and on his secretary of treasury, Mr. Manning."

"But," I enquired, "did not President Cleveland in February, 1887, order all pending proceedings against vessels seized in 1886 to be discontinued, and the release of all persons under arrest, and yet were not seven American and six Canadian vessels afterwards seized in that year?"

"Yes," replied Mr. Webster. "When the British Government protested against the seizures, the President assumed control of the matter and did order the release through the Attorney-General, but Treasury Under-Secretary Fairchild went on seizing Americans as well as Canadians; for it must be borne in mind that under the law of 1868 Americans cannot kill seals in Behring sea any more than Canadians. President Cleveland had in mind no doubt when he yielded to England in February, 1887, a negotiation for a close time, which he began early in 1888, but which Canada burked by delay till April 1888, when our minister in London said it was impossible, because it could not be included before the presidential election. In 1888 no seizures were made, but three Canadian vessels at least were seized in 1889, and many have been seized in 1890 under of March 22, 1890. That proclamation and the seizures under it can stand only the claim that by the law of 1890 the waters of Behring Sea, within the dominion of the United States, embrace all east of the treaty boundary. For the seizures thus made in 1886, 1887, 1889, and 1890, England insists on £400,000 as damages to her subjects."

"Have you read the official documents on the dispute just published by the British Government, and what do you say of the British contention?"

Mr. Webster replied that he thought the British Foreign Office was disposed to be more reasonable, and that a fair adjustment would have been reached had it not been for the constantly rising demands of the Canadian Privy Council, which finally insisted that in fact no close season or limited area was necessary to protect seal breeding."

"Canada has seventeen vessels in the seal business in our Behring Sea, worth $125,000, their outfit costing $150,000, and their catch worth from $200,000 to $400,000, and for that she will make England fight."

"Is the dispute ripe for international arbitration?"

"On the showing of the published documents it is very far from it. Canada puts in an issue to nearly every allegation of fact made by the United States as supporting their contention. What our experts affirm about the habits of the seals is denied by Canadian experts. So long as the essential facts are thus in dispute, the case is not ripe for decision."

"Is there, then, no way for an honorable and peaceful outcome?"

A SUGGESTED SOLUTION.

"Yes," Mr. Webster answered, "a very simple and obvious way, which is by a judicial trial in the regular way in the courts of the United States. Secretaries Bayard and Blaine could each have properly enough said to England that our courts are open. Vessels and persons inconvenienced were proceeded against in our courts, and England must exhaust her remedies there before she invokes diplomacy. Canadian claimants would demur to the jurisdiction, to the sufficiency of the libels in admiralty, argue the demurrers, and if over-ruled convey the question to the Supreme Federal Court at Washington. Let a new seizure be made of a Canadian caught red-handed outside the three-mile zone, and all on board carried in for adjudication at Sitka. Let Canada employ all the resources of her bar and resist the trial and condemnation. Let Canada produce witnesses to prove her contentions about seal life, and let the United States produce their witnesses in rebuttal. Let every relevant fact in dispute be fought over in open court, and the whole record carried by appeal to the Supreme Court at Washington and there argued. Thus the legal truths will be ascertained, and the true meaning of the phrase in the law of 1868, 'the waters thereof.' Does it mean more than the three miles of the laws of 1868, 1870, and 1880? Does it mean all the waters east of the pelagic line? Then, is or is not the municipal statute unconstitutional because forbidden by the law of nations? I fancy any lawyer defending the seizure before our Supreme Court will have a stiff bit of work on his hands. If he cannot establish that, the value of our rookeries will be impaired. If [illegible] control seal-killing in all our part of Behring Sea [illegible] line the United States must continue the court by affirmative proof that, in order to safeguard our sealing industries on our islands in Behring Sea, the usual three-mile or range of gun limit must be enlarged. It will be idle, as it seems to me, for any United States Attorney-General to endeavor to persuade that court that our part of Behring Sea is in international law a closed sea, and not open to everybody's vessels and everybody's fishing outside the marine league, with the possible exception of killing fur seals."

To my suggestion that England, and especially Canada, may naturally be unwilling to trust in the impartiality of the Supreme Court of Washington in a case like the Behring Sea dispute, Mr. Webster quickly said:—"Possibly so; but why? The court work for both sides is to produce expert witnesses, and get out facts under the security of compelling answers to proper questions and of cross-examination. The court is a better machine for that than any commission can be. Surely England will not say that our Federal courts, watched by courageous counsel, will not be impartial in taking and compelling the production of evidence. When the evidence is all in, then will come the law questions—Whether or not, upon all the facts, the municipal laws authorized the seizures, and if they did, then whether or not those municipal laws are unconstitutional, because forbidden by the law of the nations. If it be suggested that our Supreme Court will look behind the proven facts to see the real parties litigant, they will see every American who wishes to kill seals in Behring Sea opposed to the Attorney-General of the United States, and in sympathy with Canada. It will be nothing new for that court to deal with great questions of international law, with territorial jurisdictions, with boundaries of great States, with prizes of war, with neutral zones, with free seas, with immunity of flags, and with unconstitutional legislation by Congress and unconstitutional exercises of power by Presidents of the United States.

Marriage is Not a Failure.

The Columbian says that "Doc" Foster, who has lived on what is known as Foster's Island for many years, and whose age is 89, was united in the bonds of holy matrimony with Miss Hoskins, aged 69. The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. J. Thompson in the presence of a few friends of the contracting parties. The bride has acted as housekeeper for Mr. Foster for many years.

U. S. ARMY DESERTERS.

The Law Under Which They Can Return—No General Pardon.

Inquiries have been made at this office concerning a proclamation said to have been made by President Harrison in reference to the return of deserters from the United States army. Some people have an idea that a general pardon has been granted, something on the lines of the "Jubilee pardon" by the Queen in the case of deserters from the British army and navy. No such pardon has been made, however.

From U. S. Consul Myers it is learned that there has been no change made in the statutory law which says [illegible] from the army, two years' residence in the States after the time of enlistment has expired is necessary before immunity from arrest and punishment is granted. For instance, a man might have enlisted in 1882 for five years. This would bring his term of service to 1887. Should he desert before his time of service had expired, it will be necessary for him to have lived two years in the States since 1887. He can then apply to the Secretary of War, and by proving residence, can obtain a release and be pardoned.

FIRE OUTSIDE THE CITY LIMITS.

After September 30th the Fire Department Will Not Respond.

In accordance with a resolution passed at the last meeting of the board of Aldermen, an official notice has been given to Chief Engineer Deasy, instructing him not to reply with his department to any alarms which may be sent in from outside the city limits.

This new order has been made on account of the refusal of the Provincial Government to contribute anything towards the maintenance of the department. It is also believed by the aldermen that it is not safe for the firemen and the apparatus to be away from the the city, as while they are absent a blaze may occur within the limits, resulting in the destruction of much valuable property belonging to ratepayers. Had the Government agreed to contribute, additional apparatus and extra men could have been procured, and then in the event of a fire in the suburbs, part of the brigade could have responded, while a reserve was left to guard the city.

As considerable valuable property is outside the city limits, the owners of it will probably be a bit anxious about their insurance in the future. It is possible, too, that rates on outside risks will be somewhat higher now that the protection of the fire department has been withdrawn.

Investigation Concluded.

Commissioner Walkem yesterday concluded the investigation into the conduct of Warden John of the provincial jail and reserved his report. S. P. Mills for the Attorney-General, and Eberts & Taylor for Mr. John.

Change of Quarters.

The city librarian has given notice that the institution will be closed from the 10th to the 20th of September, while a change is being made in quarters. The present rooms are to be vacated, and the new ones in the city hall taken possession of. The latter are much larger, and will permit of the library growing without any crowding.

Three Great Discoveries.

It is worthy of remark that 1892 will be the centenary of the three great discoveries, two of which are of particular interest to the people of British Columbia. In 1492 Columbus discovered America. In 1592 Juan de Fuca discovered the strait which bears his name, and in 1792 Captain Robert Gray discovered Gray's harbor and the Columbia river.

Away for the South.

The City of Puebla left this port for San Francisco this morning with the following passengers: Fred. Huck, Alf. Fellows, Mrs. Dalton and family, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Geo. Clyde, Mrs. J. Dewsnap, A. Dewsnap, Miss M. Scott, Miss S. Chambers, Miss G. Allen, Miss S. Sipprells, E. A. Morton, J. Allen, Miss Good, W. H. Quinn, M. S. Check, E. Stranger, Thomas Gore, Mrs. J. Allen, Miss A. Allen, Mrs. D. W. Morrow and Mrs. J. W. Williams.

Cannot be Surpassed

Mr. Jno. T. Pierre, merchant tailor, has received his first shipment of fall and winter goods, comprising elegant English and American coatings, suitings and trousering. On inspection they will be welcomed by lovers of choice cloth as they far surpass any previous importation of woolens into British Columbia, and as Mr. Pierre employs none but the best workmen, his customers may depend on having their garments cut and made in a satisfactory manner.

Rest From His Labors.

The funeral of Rev. Angus Robertson, Presbyterian minister at Donald, B. C., was held at Calgary on the 31st. ult., the services being conducted by Rev. Messrs. Herdman and Leech in the Presbyterian church. Deceased went to Calgary in 1883 from Manitoba college as a missionary, holding services in a tent till the first Presbyterian church in Calgary was built, he being pastor for two years. He afterwards took charge of the mission fields of Pine Creek and High river, afterwards being sent to Donald, where he was taken ill of typhoid fever. Deceased was thirty-four years of age, and leaves a wife and child.

That Fire at No. 3.

Ex-Ald. D. R. Harris is inclined to disbelieve the alarming reports about No. 3 mine, Wellington. He was up there yesterday and has informed the Colonist that he spent two days underground and saw enough to convince him that accounts of the fire's extent were pure moonshine. The fire, Mr. Harris says, never amounted to much, nor was there at any time the slightest [illegible] danger. The ventilation was perfect, and there was at no time any possibility of an explosion.

What to Wear.

To-day there arrived the first consignment of fall goods for gentlemen's clothing. They comprise a well selected stock of Scotch, French, and German goods in the latest patterns, and will be made up at reasonable figures, in a first class manner, by J. McCallum, 43 Fort street.

Indians Strikers.

The Indians are learning the ways of the white workingman. An intelligent half-breed stood at the platform of the Northern Pacific depot at Seattle yesterday afternoon volubly haranguing a crowd of Indians in the most eloquent Chinook. He was a labor agitator, the first of his race. He was urging the down-trodden siwashes to stand up for their rights like white men and demand a bonus of $4 a head before they went to the hop fields. He dilated on the eagerness of the growers to secure people to pick the crop and on the large profits they would obtain.

The siwash crowd stared in stolid stupidity at the orator, and, though a few of them gave a wild cheer such as would scare the teredo out of his lair, the majority silently scattered to their bundles of dirty baggage and squatted down to await the train. They would not strike.

The trouble experienced in keeping the Indians at work has caused many growers to make a strong effort to secure white pickers.

Unbearable Agony.

For three days I suffered severely from summer complaint; nothing gave me relief and I kept getting worse until the pain was almost unbearable, but after I had taken the first dose of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, I found great relief and it did not fail to cure me. FROM BEHRING SEA.

The Sealing Schooner Annie C. Moore Arrives —Bad Weather.

This afternoon the sealing schooner Annie C. Moore, Capt. Hackett, of this port, arrived back from the Behring sea where she has been since the 10th of July. Her catch for the sea is 643 skins, [illegible] skins taken on the way up and [illegible] long skins is told. Sealing was most difficult, and an early start was made for home. She spoke the schooner E. B. Marvin about the 20th of August with 800 skins on board. No other reports of interest were brought down.

MORE WHEELS.

Bicycles Gaining Favor in Victoria.

A couple of years ago a bicycle was a thing almost unknown in Victoria, although the roads have always been just right for wheeling. Things have changed wonderfully of late, however, and now almost every young and middle-aged man who can afford it and is at all fond of athletics has one. The younger men, at least a majority of them, prefer a high wheel, that is for fast riding, but for middle-aged men and for use around the city, a safety bicycle cannot be beaten. A large number of these latter ones, that is the Brantford safety, are now in use around the city, especially among men who have some distance to go for lunch. They all speak in the highest terms of them, and say besides being a great convenience they are splendid exercise. The latest addition to the bicyclists are Capt. Grant and R. J. Plummer, who received one each from the east last evening through Mr. Chas. Minor, agent for the Brantfords.

A COLT IN COURT.

The Little One Wanted Its "Mar"—An Equine Incident.

The little fire department colt, Daisy, whose dam is one of the extension truck team, was for the first time yesterday deprived of the company of its mother. During the day the little animal whinnied for its maternal sustenance, but the call was unanswered. In the afternoon Daisy was let out into the streets for her daily run. Seeing the door of the police court open the colt deliberately went in and walked up to the clerk's desk.

When she was turned out Daisy did not want to go, and like Mary's lamb, lingered near. The firemen are all willing to affirm that the colt went into the court room to lay a complaint against the parties who ordered her taken away from her dam. The little animal has, since stabled in the fire hall, become a great favorite with all the members of the department. She is as tame as a kitten, and will follow any of the boys all over the place.

FRED. C. MARSHALL.

Dies This Morning at the Hospital—Incidents in His Life.

Frederick Charles Marshall died at the Royal Jubilee Hospital this morning. The deceased was well known in Victoria, where he had been connected with the press as a reporter for a number of years. He was the eldest son of the late Dr. Marshall, of Woodbridge, England, and came to Victoria via the East Indies and San Francisco about the end of the year 1871 or the beginning of 1872. In the summer of the latter year, he was a member of the Canadian Pacific Railway survey party that was sent out to explore the country to the east of Bute Inlet. Subsequently he was employed in one of the departments under the Walkem Government, and had the reputation of being a most efficient officer. His natural abilities lead him to newspaper life, and he became a reporter on the Daily Standard and subsequently on the Colonist, and in this capacity he worked for a number of years. He was, in his best days and before his usefulness as a journalist had partially departed, a first-class reporter and general newspaper man. He could catch the salient points in a speech—winnow the wheat from the chaff—with marvellous facility, and being well read and well educated he would easily have taken a leading position in his chosen profession but for the drinking habit, which conquers so many bright men of the profession. His health being undermined, he has not been able to work for the past half-dozen years, and for most of the present year he has been an inmate of the hospital. His illness—a complication of kidney and liver troubles—assumed a serious phase about a month ago and it was seen that his end was near. He died this morning about 9 o'clock, aged 41 years, and leaves a wife, who nursed him during his last hours, and two children. His remains will be conveyed to Ross Bay cemetery to-morrow afternoon.

Police Court Notes.

Two harmless looking drunks were assessed the regulation $5 and costs in the city police court this morning.

By arrangement of counsel for defense and prosecution the pigeon shooting case was remanded until Tuesday next.

Beaver Rock.

Beaver Rock, one of the worst obstructions in Victoria harbor, will soon be a thing of the past if giant powder has any effect on rocks. This morning the Government drilling scow was placed in position alongside of the cradle ready to start work on Monday morning. Quite a little work will have to be done in connection with the undertaking, but it will make a big difference to the harbor.

Trained Animals.

A small house at the Victoria theatre last evening, witnessed a very clever performance by Professor Gentry's trained ponies and dogs. They can do almost anything but speak, and they hardly need the power of speech as they can make themselves thoroughly understood without it. Some of their tricks are extremely difficult and the wonder is that Prof. Gentry has been able to teach them so well. It was a most interesting, laughable performance, which all the children and grown folks as well should see.

Always Leaks Out.

A few days ago a girl employed and trusted in a well known family left the residence of her employer and did not turn up again. This arose the suspicion of the gentleman and he proceeded to investigate whereupon he found that several small articles were missing. The girl was hunted up and at first denied the charge, but when threatened with arrest she relinquished the articles. The principals kept the matter very quiet, but like everything else will leak out in spite of precautions.

Doors Left Open.

During the past week the doors of several business houses in the city have been found open at night by the night watchmen and police. In all the cases carelessness in locking up has been the cause. Sometimes the doors are closed and not locked, sometimes closed, locked and the keys left in them; sometimes partly closed and locked, and occasionally not closed at all. This is no new thing, as the police often make similar discoveries, but lately it seems to be a sort of epidemic to leave doors open at night.

The Outer Dock.

Contractor Sinclair has a lot of work to do before the new outer wharf is ready for use but by the looks of things he evidently intends to finish up as quickly as possible. He has got two steam drills at work blasting out rock for the breakwaters, two divers facing the walls, and about twenty tram cars hauling out the rock after it is blasted. After the breakwaters are finished the big job of filling in will commence and although it will take a long time to finish, when it is finished, Victoria will have the best wharf on the coast. Other cities have good docks but not one of them have one to come up to what the new outer wharf will be.

Old Relics.

When the old safe vault in the City Hall was being torn down by the workmen, on its top, dust covered and forgotten were a couple of relics of years ago. One is an old-fashioned six-shooter "pepper-box" revolver. A legend attached to it states that the weapon was taken away from an Indian in 1863. The pistol looks queer alongside the modern Smith & Wesson, and is an object of curiosity to those who have inspected it. Supt. Sheppard has added it to his collection of police and crime curios. Another relic found, and which has been added to the superintendent's museum. It is the stock of an old-styled double-barrelled gun, and is part of a gun found in possession of an Indian who was arrested for murder, and who was hanged for his crime way back in the early '60's.

Nimrods Return.

Messrs. James Hutcheson and A. B. Gray, returned on the Rithet last night from Mayne Island, where they had spent a few most enjoyable days hunting. During their stay at Mayne Island they were the guests of Mr. T. Collinson, the genial postmaster, and they speak in the highest terms of his unbounded hospitality. The result of the hunt was most satisfactory, four large deer, and thirty brace of birds falling victims to their guns. Mr. Hutcheson, speaking of the large quantity of all varieties of fruit raised at Mayne Island, especially praised the plums and apricots equal to any California fruit, and said that for lack of a market tons of it would be lost. The Islander does not stop at Mayne Island on her up trip, so that the only way to send the fruit to Vancouver is to ship it first to Victoria, and then to Vancouver, the rehandling and transportation eating up the profits, so that practically the only market for it is Victoria. The crops are all exceptionally good this year, and an air of general prosperity pervades the community.

Vino Scolletti Italiano.

On the Rocks.

The miniature cyclone that struck Victoria for a few minutes on Thursday night must have struck Nanaimo when in the height of its fury, as fences, etc., suffered. The bark Lucille was blown from her moorings in the harbor on to Nicol rock. She was not badly damaged, and floated off at high tide.

Married.

Dr. P. J. Rice, of Nanaimo, lately of Montreal was married in Homer, N. Y., on August 21st to Miss W. E. Smith of that city. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion. The happy party left immediately after the marriage for Toronto, where they are spending a few days before coming home.

The Wellington Fiasco.

Two of C Battery men left Wellington yesterday morning, having in charge a deserter, who had evidently become disgusted with the monotonous existence which he was compelled to endure in the barracks. The man deserted from the barracks and went up to work in the mines when he was captured by Constable Stewart and handed over to the military authorities. He was brought down yesterday morning in irons and will be tried on a charge of desertion.

The procession made its usual appearance to-day, and the old time enthusiasm has not decreased. After marching to the Wellington Hotel the usual cheering was indulged in, after which the procession quietly dispersed.
